"In this emergency we again tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Improvement came at first slowly and we sometimes doubted whether she was gaining, but we noticed that whenever she stopped taking the nills she fell back, and whenever she resumed the use of them she revived, and so we kept up the treatment until she recovered her usual health and was able to take a position in one of our universities, where she is happily at work. My mother, my daughter and myself have a well-founded confidence in the merits of Dr. Williams Pink Pills, and are always ready to recommend them."

This is simply one more proof that these pills seek disease at its source and effect fundamental cures. They cure various diseases because these have a common origin in impaired blood or nerves. They put the entire system in a healthy condition because they introduce vigor that is distributed to every part. They arrest physical decay when it seems inevitable and find a road to restoration when the doctor misses it. They are sold by all druggists throughout the world.

Secretary Wiseman of Union Makes Statement. The management of the Mercantile Club yesterday filled the places of striking walters who went out Thursday in sym pathy with the "lunchmen" who had struck for higher wages on Wednesday. Members of the St. Louis Waiters' Union declare that the strike at the Mercantile Club was not in violation of any agreement with the club officials, and that the statement that the walk-out was ordered at a meeting of the union was incorrect Claude B. Wiseman, financial secretary of local No. 30 of the waiters' organization, with headquarters at No. 31 North Twelfth street, authorized this statement: The union has never had an agreement either verbal or written with any club or hotel in St. Louis, and has, therefore, violated none. We have presented, through the amusement section of Central Trades and Labor Union, a copy of an agreement for the season of 1904, to every club and hotel in St. Louis, but up to date none have signed. A large number of the restaurants and cafes are under agreement with us, and we are having no trouble. The Mercantile Club strike was a pure and simple personal one with the arrival the active had ocen on for two days we indoresed the action taken by both the union and nonunion men who struck. FUZZY-WUZZIES MUTINY AT ORDER TO GO TO WORK.

wazis, Kaffirs and Zulus Fefuse to Take Up "Black Man's Burden," but Surrender Unconditionally.

Grim-visaged war lifted its angry head yesterday afternoon in the camp of the Boers and British on the World's Fair and for a time threatened a dire conflict of the races. The disturbing element was the company of "fuzzy-wuzzies" who made long and loud protest against the onerousness of the "black man's burden" and in a body attempted to desert. The uprising of the blacks was caused by an intrusion on the prolonged siesta. which the Swazis, Kaffirs and Zuius have enjoyed since they arrived in St. Louis. Under the languorcus winds of a St.

enjoyed since they arrived in St. Louis. Under the languorces winds of a St. Louis spring, they developed an inertia that made them hate the very name of work and long only for the dreamy pleasure of the lotus caters.

Until yesterday they were indulged in this to the top of their bent. This was because of the fact that in the construction period at the camp military discipline was relaxed somewhat. Yesterday the men were ordered into camp. The blacks were ordered to do camp duty in policing the grounds.

As one man, under the leadership of Kaffir Tom, they balked. Threats were of no avail. In the choicest of Somali. Kaffir, Zulu and Swari they swore by all their native gods that they would not do police duty, but would leave the camp, alake the dust of St. Louis from their bare heels and hie them to the Dark Continent before they would submit.

They started to carry their threat into action. As they marched down the hill in solid phalanx General Manager Frank Pillis started after them and called on them to return. They were deaf to his entreaties and assured him that they would rather leave than work. Mr. Fillis called on the British and Boer soldiers, who were standing about enjoying the situation, for assistance.

Volunteers rushed to his assistance and huried the black men back toward the camp. Kaffir Tom called on them to fight for their liberty, and the half-ciad blacks rushed to a lumber pile and selezed sticks, which they brandished like their native war spears, at the same time hurling words of defiance at the British and Boers.

words of defiance at the British and Boers.

The soldiers, for the first time since their arrival on a peaceful mission in St. Louis, suffied the scent of battle, and with a rush they charged the blacks, disarmed them, hustled them about, and, after a sound drubbing, sent them back to the camp. The fuzzy-wuzzles concluded to make an unconditional surrender, shake off the spring fever and go to work at their allotted tasks.

The dally will chronicle the events of interest around the Indian tepees and the Congress Hall and will be edited, set up and printed by the Indians. The staff has not yet been definitely decided on, but it will have an educated Indian, or "short-hand Indian," as Mattox calls him, for an editor.

It will have a society column, in which will be stated that: "Two Dogs called on Miss Tail Feather last night," and "We hear that Chief Tail Crane of the Sloux refused to kiss a Filipino," and that "Cold Heart is engaged to Miss Red Deer, who runs from the gun."

The dally also will contain the programme for each day among the Indians, and points about the work that is being done by them at the Fair. The paper, it is asserted will be a novelty in many ways and, incidentally, it will be the first daily that the Indians have ever issued.

SIOUX DO NOT APPROVE NUDENESS OF IGORROTES.

Chief Tall Crane and Party Visit Cuartel-Prospective Cock Fight Arouses Their Interest.

Chief Tall Crane of the Sioux, clad in his gayest robes and with his full feathers and accompanied by several of his tribe, including two squaws, called on the Igorrotes yesterday. They were admitted to the camp and they walked around, looking keenly at the naked savages. The combined clothes of the savage Igorrotes, if sewed together, would not have made a piece of cloth large enough to flag a freight train.
"Naked!" said old Tall Crane, with a wry face. "Look at the clothes!" one of the Igor-rotes said to unother.

The Sloux wandered around the camp of the Igorrotes for half an bour, but apparently did not enjoy themselves. An apparently did not enjoy themselves. An interpreter said that they were disgusted with the nakedness of the Igorrotes and declared that they were savages and were not American citizens. Chief Pall Crane looked the nude people over critically and shook his head.

"Not good people," he grunted.

While the Sioux wandered about the camp they kept their clothes even tighter around them, bringing up the ends of their blankets go that scarcely their andless showed. They were much interested when told that the Government had made the Igorrote women wear coats, even if the coats were not buttoned up, for by the coats the women were distinguished from the men.

Very few Igorrotes wore more than a breach clout, and men and women were dressed the same, except that the women wore a coat or a coarse blouse.

"How do you like them?" was asked of Tail Crane.

"Ugh!" he replied, and shook his head. The Igorrotes seemed much interested in the Indians, particularly in the gorgeous blankets and headdresses and feathers, and the painted faces, for the Indians were in full dress.

Several Negritos were washing some clothes with their feet in the creek and the Indians stopped to watch them, evidently interested. The Negritos simply kicked the clothes around in the water with their feet and then wrung them out, spreading them on the bank to dry. Then they waded in themselves. They did not use their hands to bathe their bodies.

"That's the way dogs wash," said one of the Indians, according to the interpreter.

The Sloux were also interested in seeing a man clin the wings of the chickens of the c of the Indians, according to the interpreter.

The Sloux were also interested in seeing a man clip the wings of the chickens so that they could not fly. The scheme was explained to them, but their faces showed nothing of what they thought of the scheme. When an Igorrote tried to get up a fight between two roosters, however, the Indians grinned as if it were something they understood and liked.

WORLD'S FIREMEN COMING TO FAIR

Great International Congress of Fire-Fighters Will Be Held in August-Exposition Offers $10,000.

Arrangements for the International Firemen's Tournament at the World's Fair have been completed and the plans of the Exposition officials and the National Firemen's Association contemplate the most largely attended firemen's congress that has ever been held. Chief George C. Hale, who is president of the National Firemen's Association, has acted in conjunction with a World's Fair committee, of which Chief Swingley of the St. Louis Fire Department is a $10,000 for special prizes. The prizes to be offered by individuals, associations and supply companies will run the total amount of prizes up to about $25,000.

"We have already received assurance."
said Chief Hale yesterday, "that firemen from 200 American cities will participate in the exhibitions to be held on the World's Fair grounds."

The tournament will begin August 22, and continue for five days.

"In the East there are many associations composed of members of the old volunteer companies. These have been invited to attend the World's Fair congress, and the invitation has been accepted in every instance. Tom Crimmins, a member of the old volunteer organization in New York, who is now a millionaire, has notified me that he will pay the entire expense of the visit of the New

Many foreign companies have accepted invitations to attend the congress, but their visit will be for observation purposes only.

Chief Hale's own company from Kansas City, which is now giving daily exhibitions at the World's Fair, will not participate in the competitive drills. A stipulation to this effect was made when the arrangements for the International Congress were first begun.

CARRY "SWAGGER STICKS." American Army Men Acquire Habit

English "swagger eticks" have made their appearance in St. Louis. Their appearance in the World's Fair city is coincident with that of an unusual number of United States Army officers, many of them fresh from long sojourns in the of United States Army officers, many of them fresh from long sojourns in the Orient.

Lest anyone unknowingly should acquire the "swagger stick" habit, without a clear title to the right to carry it, it should be stated that the title is vested only in an army officer. Civilians have no right to carry it and will bring down ridicule on their heads by so doing.

And even army officers are not supposed to carry the stick unless in uniform, and only when not wearing their side arms. In fact, the etiquette of the little "swagger stick" is as manifold and complicated as that of the visiting card.

The stick is a recent acquirement of American Army officers, having been adopted from those English officers whom they met in China and the far East since Uncle Sam has been keeping international company. It comes in all kinds of shapes and all sorts of woods—except the common, everyday variety. It is but two and a half feet long and is carried much like a riding crop or a baton.

The fewer bars an officer has to show on his shoulder straps the jauntier the stick he carries. Several of the Exposition colony of young officers carry ones made out of the born of the caribou. About the most "swagger stick" of all of them is that which Captain Conrad, the athletic adjutant of the Jenerson Guards, sports. This is an ebony haton presented to him by an admiring native of the Province of Abra in Luson, which is noted for its fine wood carving. The method of carving is to paste over the stick a paper bearing the design which is to be carved on the stick. The native then cuts through the paper on the wood and when he has completed the task, washes the paper from the stick.

WORK OF WESTERN ARTISTS IN CALIFORNIA BUILDING.

Several beautiful paintings by J. Bond Francisco of Los Angeles have been hung in the California building, which is now being furnished and which will soon be open to visitors.

Another picture that has attracted much attention is of several maillard ducks hanging upon the door of a rude cabin, where the hunter has evidently placed them upon his return from a day's sport.

Paintings by Paul de Longpre, whose specialty is flowers, have also been received. This artist raises flowers from which to paint his pictures, so that he may have perfect specimens.

The purpose of the exhibit, which is participated in by all cotton-growing States, is to present an epitgme of the cotton industry.

It begins with the preparation of the soil, then covers seeding, cultivation, harvesting, baling, and ends with the delivery at the factory door. All the tools, implements and machinery which are necessary for the demonstration of these processes are shown. In addition, the products and by-products of cotton and cotton seed, for years considered of ne value, has now become almost as important in its relations to commerce as the lint itself. The extraction of oil, its refining and preparation as fode, the value of the man, both as uils and their value as a food for animas and use in other ways, are all interestingly shown, to say nothing of the soap and lesser articles which find a place in the marts of the world.
